Who are the urology continence nurse specialists?

The urology nurse specialists are registered nurses who have specialist training in caring for patients who are experiencing problems with their bladder and patients who have incontinence of urine.

The urology nurse specialists work as members of the urology team. Many people may be involved with your care, and they form the Multi Disciplinary Team (MDT).

Who is the service for?

The service is available for anyone who needs help with managing problems such as

- Urine leakage
- Difficulty in emptying the bladder (retention of urine)
- Urgency and frequency in going to pass urine.
- Intermittent self-catheterisation
- Urine infections
- Being woken at night to pass urine.
- Bladder Pain
- Catheter management

How can the urology nurse specialist help me?

The urology nurse specialists liaise closely with the consultant urologists and have the necessary training and authority to diagnose and manage your condition. In addition, the nurses can organise investigations and book operations where appropriate. At your first appointment the nurse will be able to spend time with you to really help and support you.

What can the urology nurse specialist do?

The nurse specialist will undertake an assessment of the problems you are experiencing with your bladder. Following the assessment, specific advice and support will be tailored to your needs.

Often, improvements can be made with a few simple changes to your lifestyle. Sometimes it may be that medication or a referral to physiotherapy would be of benefit to you. On occasion, an operation may be suggested to help improve the storage or emptying of urine.

To find more about your urinary problems, the nurse specialist may examine you and do further investigations.

- Blood tests
- Ultrasound scans
- Flow test (passing urine into a machine that measures the flow).
- Cystoscopy (a look inside the bladder using a special camera either under local or general anaesthetic).
- Urodynamic studies (a short test which works out how well your bladder stores and empties urine).

Contact the urology nurse specialists

The urology nurse specialists can be contacted between the hours of 9am and 5pm each week day. There is a voicemail facility if you wish to leave a message. Please include your name and date of birth (or your hospital number if you have it) so that the nurses can return your call although this may not be on the same day.
