What should I expect after my bronchoscopy or EBUS?

- Your nose and throat may be a little sore
- If the bronchoscope was passed through your nose you may have a slight nosebleed
- You may cough up some blood or blood-stained phlegm. This is nothing to worry about and should settle within 24 hours.
- If you have had throat spray you will be advised not to eat or drink anything for 90 minutes after your test.
- If you have been told you have had a lavage (or 'wash') performed, you may have a slight temperature over the next 24 hours. This is quite usual and can be treated with paracetamol, but if this persists after 24 hours you should contact your GP.

Important information about sedation

If you have had sedation, it can take up to 24 hours to fully wear off; you may feel drowsy and be forgetful over this time.

For bronchoscopy, usually either fentanyl (a painkiller and cough suppressant) or midazolam (a sedative) is given. For EBUS, usually both are used.

- Fentanyl: You will need adult supervision if you are discharged before one hour after having your procedure. Avoid using public transport to go home unless accompanied by an adult. You must not drive or operate machinery for 24 hours.
- Midazolam: You will need adult supervision, recommended for 24 hours and a minimum of three hours. You are advised to avoid using public transport, and to have a responsible adult to stay with you overnight. You must not drive, operate machinery, drink alcohol return to work or sign legal documents for 24 hours.

What about my results or further appointments?

Results will come back to consultant / medical team.

Your consultant's team will arrange any further appointments you need and give you the results of your test when available. These will also be shared with your GP for their information.
